About This Game

In Summer Heights Correctional Facility, the government are using the prison to experiment on the inmates. As the prison population has been pushed to the brink the government have been pitting inmates against each other as part of a psychological observation know as The Prison Experiment. With a ticket home and a pardon from the warden on the line, walking free has never cost so much!

The Prison experiment is a third person Battle Royale experience with a twist. You will be faced with a totally unique gaming experience designed to separate the strong from the weak.

This game is not just offering a fifty man free for all mode, we also offer different game modes for a truly immersive playing experience. We want players to get the full Battle Royal experience and more!

Features -

CLASSIC BATTLE ROYALE - This is what players have come to expect from a Battle royale game. Fifty players enter the game but only one can claim the victory. Be sure to keep moving though as cell blocks will begin to close off and you will left trapped with no way out.

KING OF THE CELL BLOCK - This is our take on a classic game mode. Fifty players are spawned randomly in five sectors of the map. Each five sections will have their own last man standing fight and the winners of each section are pushed into the sixth and final location of the map. The last five players standing will fight again, and the winner will take home the victory.

The Dark Souls of Microgames™. Provided you can find someone to play it with, this game is great fun. Surprisingly fast paced, you wouldn't think it would be looking at the game but when you play it it feels like you're constantly flying around inside the mech. The only downside is the public multiplayer lobbies are completely deserted and it's almost impossible to find anyone to play with without using their discord, even then it's difficult.. SUCKS ♥♥♥♥♥ING ♥♥♥♥♥. one of the funniest multiplayer games in vr, which is not getting the visibility it deserves. The best Larry game in the last 20 years. Still funny, yet much less difficult.

Great to pass the time.. Hercules goes brute force.

I'll keep this short. As a casual game, it's the same 12LoH fare as in the past games. Nice visuals, good music, lots of gametime. Unless you want all the achievements, in which case you're scred :)

As a challenge game , it... changed. While I liked the 5th game for it's more creative challenges, the 6th installment goes in the other direction - long levels with focus on mostly one resource and speedy clicking. It's not bad, but it does feel like grinding way too often - redoing 8-9 min levels multiple times are a massive pain in the backside. Games 2-4 were too easy - this one certainly isn't. Not bad, altogether, but I liked Kids of Hellas better.

. Great lil tower defense game. It IS geared a little more toward a younger crowd, but I still had fun with it.. I grew up on games like Kings Quest and have always enjoyed a good point and click game. It seems that quite a few of these types of games have been coming out recently and a lot of them are high quality. If you have played Primordia, Unforeseen Incidents, and other newer offerings to this genre this game continues the trend of excellency.

The important things you want to know

-The puzzles are great. No ridiculous logic leaps needed and you are rewarded for having a keen eye to detail. Very thoughtful puzzle design.

-The voice acting is excellent. The characters all have a unique personality which helps to create a world that is interesting to explore. I haven't found myself skipping through conversations and this also comes back to the previous point.

-The animations are just right. Really fits the genre quite well and hits a bit of nostalgia for me.

If you're looking for a fun point and click game, and one that doesn't allow you to get frustrated I highly recommend Whispers of a Machine. I've been playing point and click adventure games for years and this one has already slotted itself in as a favorite of mine.. DOWNLOADS MALWARE
